

Not guilty, says woman charged with shooting her husband

By BECKY BARNES, EDITOR

Christy Nickerson said she heard no arguing from her neighbors on Saturday night, but she did hear a gunshot.

Nickerson's neighbor, Kerrie Florence Alvarez, 39, is charged with shooting her husband, Javier Alvarez, in the scrotum during an argument at their Newsome Avenue home about 11:15 p.m. Saturday.

Nickerson said she heard police sirens and saw the flashing lights and stepped to the door to see what was happening.

Cruelty charges sought, dogs seized

By BEN HYATT, NEWS WRITER

Harrison County Animal Control officers and sheriff's deputies continue to check on the welfare of three horses on Stringtown Webber Road in northwestern Harrison County.

According to Deputy Robert Peak, a Harrison County woman will face seven counts of second degree animal cruelty charges.

Peak said an animal complaint was made on Sunday, Feb. 19, by a cattle farmer on Stringtown Webber Road, where a calf was killed by a pack of dogs.

Chesnut children laid to rest

Regina Gentry and Pam Yelton, who attend Boyd United Methodist Church with the Chesnuts, lit candles in memory of Jacqueline and Rachel Chesnut at a candlelight prayer vigil Sunday at the Harrison County courthouse.

Albert Chesnut, left, held a flame as a tribute to his sisters who perished in a Feb. 15 fire at the family's home on Oddville Avenue. Chesnut told the crowd that his father remains in critical condition and thanked everyone for their prayers. Two little girls lying in a single casket holding hands is an image Ron Livingood will never forget.

Livingood, superintendent of Grant County Schools, along with other administrative staff and nearly all of the teachers at Grant County Middle School, traveled to Winchester Monday for the funeral of Rachel and Jacqueline Chesnut, children of Shelly and Terry Chesnut.

Shelly Chesnut has been a sixth grade science teacher for the last eight years at GCMS.

"It is the saddest thing I've ever witnessed," Livingood said. "There were two beautiful, angelic, little girls in the same casket holding hands. It will indelibly be etched in my mind."

The girls died last week and their father continues to fight for his life at the University of Kentucky Chandler medical center.

Their Oddville Avenue home caught on fire around noon last Wednesday, Feb. 15. The cause of the fire remains under investigation by Kentucky State Police Detective Anthony Gaston and Curtis Combs, the KSP arson investigator.

According to Cynthiana Fire Chief Jay Sanders, dispatch received the call at 12:05 p.m. Firefighters were on the scene of what Sanders termed "a fully involved fire" in less than two minutes.

He said Terry Chesnut, who was staying at home with the two smallest of the Chesnuts' eight children, was outside and walking around the house.

When Chesnut told firefighters that his girls were still inside the burning house, the father was given to paramedics and firefighters went inside.

"The girls were found in about the same area," Sanders said, noting that both were unconscious when firefighters reached them.

Rachel, 4, and Jacqueline, 5, died as the results of injuries they received in a fire at their Cynthiana home on Feb. 15.

Jacqueline was pronounced dead later that day, while Rachel died the next day.

Woman flees courthouse after judge announces 5-year jail sentence

By BEN HYATT, NEWS WRITER

A Harrison County woman will have second degree escape added to her list of charges after she ran from the Justice Center Tuesday.

A call was made to dispatch at 10:31 a.m., Feb. 21, in reference to a woman who had fled out of the Justice Center following her sentencing in Harrison County Circuit Court.

According to Robert Peak of the Harrison County Sheriff's Office, Tara Fryman, 29, was sentenced to five years for charges stemming from a robbery and possession of forged instruments, when she decided to run from the court house.

"She had pleaded guilty due to a plea bargain and was waiting to talk to her attorney upstairs," said Peak. "She then ran down stairs and out the doors and then disappeared."

According to Peak, Fryman changed her plea to guilty as part of a plea bargain and thought she would receive probated time for her crimes.

"The judge denied her probation and told her that she was in custody immediately," said Peak. "I guess that was enough for her to run."

Peak said once outside the Justice Center, Fryman was able to get away from authorities because she was wearing street clothes and blended in.

"We are not sure if she had someone pick her up or what happened," said Peak. "She later contacted us and said she had to see her kids before she turned herself in, but has yet to do so."

At press time, Fryman was still not in the custody of officials.

Cynthiana man accused of sending sexually explicit text messages to teen

By BEN HYATT, NEWS WRITER

A Harrison County man has been charged with prohibited use of an electronic communication system to procure a minor/sex offense.

According to Harrison County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Peak, Keith Grob, 39, was arrested on Feb. 6, and accused of sending unlawful text messages to a minor.

Grob was charged for allegedly trying to get a 16-year-old girl to engage in illegal sexual activity.

According to Peak, the inappropriate contact allegedly began around April 2011 and ended sometime in August.

"The alleged occurrence began in Harrison County during the summer months last year," said Peak. "At this time we are unable to say where it originated at, but it was in Harrison County."

According to the Harrison County Sheriff's report, an unknown individual filed the initial report on Set. 22, 2011, which stated that Grob was inappropriately texting several female juveniles.

"At this time we have only had one person come forward in saying that they received explicit texts from Mr. Grob," said Peak.

The initial report also states that the parents of the juvenile that Grob was allegedly texting did not wish to "report or prosecute" Grob at that time.

Grob, former interim director of admissions at Eastern Kentucky University, was scheduled to appear in Harrison County District Court on Feb. 20, for the pending charges.

However, the arraignment was continued at the request of the county attorney and Grob's defense attorney to March 19 at 1 p.m.

Grob is currently released on a $1,500 cash bond.

E-Z Pack rolls onto Atlanta market

E-Z Pack Manufacturing of Cynthiana announced last week that Waste Pro USA's first-ever compressed natural gas (CNG) solid waste collection truck has rolled off E-Z Pack's assembly line and into the Atlanta market.
The vehicle, an E-Z Pack Hercules Front Loader body built on a 2012 Mack chassis, arrived in the Atlanta area on Feb. 3 and is anticipated to be in operation later this month. CNG tanks are uniquely integrated in the upper rear of the vehicle body for vehicle weight distribution and lower overall height.
The body features greater ground clearance and, at 75 diesel gallon equivalents (DGEs), more fuel capacity than other CNG waste truck body options in the industry.
"E-Z Pack is proud to have played a prominent role in Waste Pro USA's move to reducing emissions and foreign energy dependency," said Jim Rogers, vice president of sales and marketing at E-Z Pack.
E-Z Pack Manufacturing LLC is a manufacturer of waste collection truck bodies, including front loaders, rear loaders and side loaders used on commercial and residential routes. Located in Cynthiana, the company has offered trash truck bodies and OEM parts for more than 60 years. E-Z Pack brands include the Hercules™ Front Loader and Automated Side Loader and the Goliath™ and Apollo™ Rear Loaders.

Chesnuts

Albert Chesnut, the couple's 20-year-old son, told a crowd gathered at the Harrison County Courthouse for a prayer vigil for his family Sunday, that his father was being sedated. Terry suffered third degree burns and his lungs were also severely damaged by the fire.

Albert is a student at Eastern Kentucky University, where he was in class when he heard about the fire.

Keith Mitchell, pastor at Boyd United Methodist Church where the Chesnut family attends services, described the girls as being full of energy and happy to show off a new dress. He also said that Jacqueline said something prophetic during the Sunday service before her death.

"I'm going to heaven," the little girl announced from her seat.

Mitchell said the little girls are also likely to be showing off their new heavenly gowns now.

Visitation and funeral services were held Feb. 20 in Winchester. The sisters were buried in the Clarmont Memorial Garden in Clark County.

The Harrison and Grant communities have rallied around the Chesnut family.

Shawnia Beagle of Journey Christian Church and Lois Gross from St. James organized Sunday's vigil. Journey Church is also collecting clothing as well as home furnishings.

Sheila Roberts, Journey office staff, said if anyone has furniture to donate they can call the church at 235-8449 and someone will pick it up. The items are being stored in a warehouse until the family can settle in.

A house has been donated in Grant County, however, it will not be available until school is out.

The Chesnuts are staying with family in Winchester, Roberts said.

In addition to the tangible donations, the family is also receiving monetary gifts through bank accounts in Cynthiana and Williamstown.

The GCMS PTT (parent/teacher organization) donated almost $4,000 to cover the funeral expenses. Livingood said about $30,000 had been raised.

Fellow teachers at GCMS and in the district have donated sick time to Shelly so that she can be off the remainder of the school year and still get paid.

Terry taught at Harrison Middle from 1999 to 2002.

In addition to Albert, the Chesnuts also have five other surviving children including one daughter who is married and no longer living at home.

Animals

"I received a call from a man who advised me that one of his calves had been killed and eaten on by a few dogs," said Peak. "The man told me that he saw the dogs run off toward a house near him that had been abandoned."

Peak said the following day he accompanied Animal Control Officer Allen Fryman to 3345 Stringtown Webber Road to investigate the animal complaint.

"The gate to the property was closed, but the owner had an outstanding bench warrant, so I was able to go onto the property," said Peak. "That is when we found the dogs."

Peak said the living conditions of the four live adult pit-bull mix dogs and two puppies were unacceptable.

"As we continued to search the property we found that one dog had died due to neglect," said Peak. "The other animals had broken out of the house that they were confined in and sustained injuries from long-term neglect."

Peak said three horses were also found on the property, however, the horses look to be in acceptable condition.

"We immediately seized the dogs due to the living conditions but were not able to take the horses," said Peak.

Peak said he was able to make contact with the owner of the property, Constance Carter, 60, who had allegedly moved from the property one year ago due to health-related issues.

"Ms. Carter agreed to sign over the dogs due to her having no emotional attachment to them but said that she wished to keep the horses," said Peak. "She told me that she had been traveling back and forth to care for the horses."

According to Peak, the horses are unable to be seized at this time due to their current condition, however, deputies are continuing to monitor their well-being.

The dogs were checked by a vet and have been sent to the Harrison County Animal Shelter where they will be evaluated for their temperament and later placed up for adoption.

Carter has yet to tell authorities her whereabouts. In addition to the cruelty charges, Cater also has the outstanding bench warrant in Grant County.

Trying grab-n-go breakfasts to bolster student productivity

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

Who would ever have thought that a simple yogurt parfait or sausage biscuit could improve a student's school performance?

That's exactly what Austin Dacci, nutrition coordinator and school liaison for Harrison County schools, is anticipating with the introduction of a special National School Breakfast Week pilot menu.

"When you don't eat, you can't focus," said Dacci. "Your stomach is growling, you're hungry and thinking about when it will be time for lunch and your performance drops."

The result is to overeat at lunch, which in turn causes the student to be sleepy in the afternoon.

Dacci surveyed students at Harrison County High School and Middle School, asking if they eat breakfast and if not what would bring them to the cafeteria in the morning.

The majority of the students, Dacci said, are not eating at all.

Basically, students want to socialize with their friends in the gym in the said.

The trial breakfasts for March 5-9 are offering grab-n-go options in addition to the traditional menu.

The grab-n-go menu for that week starts with a biscuit and gravy bowl on Monday. It's healthy, said Dacci, of the one-half of a whole grain biscuit served with low sodium gravy made with skim milk.

On Tuesday, students can choose a yogurt parfait, which consists of a half cup of vanilla yogurt, a half cup of strawberry/blueberry mix and granola mornings before going to class.

Dacci would like to see that socialization over a healthy breakfast.

Time was the No. 1 reason students said they weren't eating breakfast.

"Our goal is to get students in and out of the cafeteria fast," Dacci topping.

An English muffin with egg, cheese and turkey sausage will be Wednesday's offering.

On Thursday, students will be treated to mini pancake bites that can be popped in your mouth like donut holes.

On Friday, walk out with a PB&J wrap with the added crunch of rice cereal.

Dacci noted that in a school district where 57 percent of the students are on free or reduced lunches, these students could be eating a healthy breakfast for free.

He said that all the hype about breakfast being the most important meal of the day is not just propaganda. It's true, he said.

A breakfast test program in Maryland recently served the first meal of the day in the classroom. The result was an 8 percent decline in tardiness, a reduction in suspensions by 4.4 days per month to 2.8 per month, and students' composite index scores improved in all subjects.

Similar results were gained in Minnesota, where survey results were also similar to Harrison County's.

Dacci said a student misconception is that breakfast is for lower income households.

However, he said everyone needs to eat a healthy breakfast to improve their day.

According to Harrison County School District figures, 57 percent of all Harrison County students are on free or reduced lunches. The highest percentages are at the elementary schools, where there is also greater participation in the breakfast program with nearly 50 percent of the students partaking.

At the high school, only about 130 of the 1,000 student body eat breakfast. At the middle school it's 105 of 700 students participating.

Dacci said that if the National Breakfast Week pilot menu is successful, he will seek to have it throughout the school year.

He said he's hoping that students will first grab a breakfast and go, then realize the importance of the first meal of the day.

Beaver Creek restoration project gets $100,000 grant

The Ohio River Foundation has been awarded a $100,000 grant from the United States Fish & Wildlife Fish Passage Program to restore Beaver Creek in Harrison County, Ky.

The key component of restoration will be removing a road and installing a bridge.

Apple Lane in Harrison County is a small road that crosses Beaver Creek, a tributary to the Licking River. The road floods during high water, creating a transportation hazard.

County officials are partnering with Ohio River Foundation to remove the road and install a bridge, which will improve transportation safety and restore natural flow to the creek.

"We have developed a workable model that enables us to help communities achieve the social, environmental and economic benefits of river protection and restoration. We applaud Harrison County for having the vision and ambition that this project requires and hope that other communities will follow its lead," said

Rich Cogen, executive director of Ohio River Foundation.

Alex Barnett, Harrison County Judge, praised the project, "Harrison County is excited about the opportunity to improve safety over Beaver Creek. The improvement to the crossing and the environment will affect that area of the county for generations."

Ohio River Foundation is a nonprofit organization serving the Greater Cincinnati area and the 200,000 square mile watershed with educational and conservation programs. Formed in 2000, the organization assists communities along the river and throughout the watershed in protecting their quality of life and works to improve the public's awareness of the importance of protecting and improving the natural environment in the Ohio River watershed.

Shooting

Police arrived and started toward the Alvarez residence.

"Just as the police went to reach for the door, I heard the shot," said Nickerson. "It sounded like cap gun."

Nickerson said police then ordered the Alvarezes out of their public housing unit.

"Javier walked out and fell to the ground," Nickerson said, adding that Kerrie followed with her arms in the air.

"I didn't see a gun in her hand," Nickerson said.

When the police report was read in court Monday, it was stated that Kerrie came out of the residence with a small caliber handgun in her hand and had to be repeatedly told to drop the gun.

Nickerson also said she didn't hear any arguing or fussing. "They weren't in the yard; they must've been right inside the door."

Nickerson said that the Alvarezes have lived in the neighborhood no more than a year and Javier works, possibly out of state, and is rarely home.

"I've known Kerrie for years and I've never known her to be violent like that," Nickerson said. "It had to be something that really provoked her."

Police are not disclosing what might have led to the shooting, only saying that the case remains under investigation.

Kerrie Alvarez was in Harrison District Court Monday where she entered a not guilty plea to a charge of first degree assault.

A contingent of her family and friends were also there to show support for Kerrie Alvarez.

Javier was released from the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center Monday where he had been a patient since being airlifted there on Saturday.

Alltech brewmeister opens microbrewery with buds

By BEN HYATT, News Writer

A Harrison County man has joined forces with fellow beer enthusiast to open Lexington's first micro-brewery with attached tap room.

Jeff Beagle of Harrison County recently partnered with Daniel Harrison and Evan Coppage, both of Kentucky, to bring craft beer to the Lexington area.

Beagle, a former winner of the Kentucky Ale Brew Off competition sponsored by Alltech's Lexington Brewing and Distilling Company, has taken his passion for craft beer and is now sharing it with fellow beer connoisseurs.

"We opened Country Boy Brewery and Tap Room on Feb. 10 and basically hit it out of the park," said Beagle. "Before the night was over, about 250 people had come in to try our product."

Beagle and his partners said they have cut down on the costs of building a brewery by doing all of the work themselves or with help from other friends.

"Opening a brewery is very expensive," said Beagle. "We were able to build almost everything in the brewery and tap room by hand."

In addition to building the brewery by hand, Beagle said one principle value not up for debate inside the brewery is where the ingredients come from for making their beer.

"We are trying hard to have all ingredients for our beer come from local suppliers," said Beagle. "Even the grain that we have left over from batches go to farms in Flemingsburg. We want to keep it in Kentucky."

Country Boy Brewery has 12 craft beers on tap, as well as other craft favorites. Most of the craft selections are classified as American malts with a few German malts on tap as well.

Beagle added that the price for craft beer at Country Boy Brewery is also a catch for craft beer drinkers who want to be able to afford to drink quality products.

"Word of mouth and facebook has really helped us be successful so far," said Beagle. "We are not into fancy advertising because that is not craft beer. Our product sells itself."

Beagle said the brewery is being more successful than initially planned, with all plans of distributing being pushed ahead of schedule.

"Within two more months we will be able to distribute locally on a limited basis," said Beagle. "It is growing so fast and it continues to surprise us."

Country Boy Brewery is located at 436 Chair Ave. Lexington.

Hours are 4 p.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Wednesday, 4 p.m. to midnight Thursday and Friday, noon to midnight on Saturday and 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday.

Tours of the brewery will be available on Friday at 4 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday at 1 p.m.

Peddlers Mall owners use previous experience in their new business venture

By BEN HYATT, News Writer

After spending nine years in Harrison County, a Michigan family has opened a store that they have several years of history in running.

Mona and Bobby Holman moved to Harrison County nine years ago when they decided to start their very own family.

"I always wanted my children to be around their grandparents," said Mona. "We moved here to be close to my father, who at the time was the only grandparent left."

However, shortly after moving from Waterford, Mich., to Harrison County, Mona said her father passed away.

"We had already sold our property in Michigan and we were here," said Mona. "We decided to stay and it has been a decision that we have never regretted."

In August 2011, the Holmans purchased the building, which used to be Atkinson's Judy Flowers, located next to the Bridge Street BP, with the intent of opening a peddlers'-type mall and pawn shop.

"My husband has over 20 years of experience in the pawn business," said Mona.

"We owned a pawn and music store in Michigan for 13 years before we moved here."

On Dec. 3, 2011, the family opened the doors to J&J's Trading Post and began to rent out booths for local craftsmen and businesses to display their works or trades.

"We are trying to keep the booths local," said Mona. "We have people like Ritchie's Vacuum and other locals that use our booths to promote their business."

Mona said the store is currently capable of housing up to 15 individual booths, along with the store's general merchandise on display.

Mona also said the business will be capable of renting out public address equipment for a variety of functions as well as lighting for special events.

"I like to think that we have a little of everything in the store," said Mona. "We have instruments for sale and to rent, fine china and crystal or even something as small as guitar strings."

Mona proudly spoke of the support that the local community has shown the new store thus far.

"We really enjoy the downtown area," said Mona. "My husband and I both feel that with the right attitude, Cynthiana will bounce back from the hard times that it's faced with currently."

For more information regarding J&J's Trading Post or to inquire about renting a booth, contact the store at 859-508-0359 or at 859-588-8270.

The store's hours are Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Root to host March Preceptor Omega Chapter meeting

Preceptor Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held the Feb. 6 meeting at the home of Charlene Dawson. Patsy Barnett, president, called the meeting to order.

Bonnie Teater presented the program on the traditions of Valentines. She gave a history of customs of Valentines in other countries and shared the fact that the theme of Love, Love, Love should be kept in the heart constantly. All members participated in a Valentine quiz and shared Valentine stories.

On Feb. 11 members and husbands enjoyed a Valentines dinner at Varden's in Paris. This event was planned by Ann Hall and Barbara Snopek.

As a service project members of the chapter served a Valentine lunch to residents of Clifton Village on Feb. 13. After lunch several games of Bingo were played by the residents. Everyone likes winning a prize.

Linda Root will be the hostess for the March meeting.

Christians are not limited to just three free sins

It's not every day that I get "three free sins" in the mail, but today I did. Unfortunately, I used them up even before I got the envelope opened. I'm talking about Bible teacher, author and Christian radio personality Steve Brown's new book, "Three Free Sins," subtitled, "God's Not Mad at You."

The title comes from Steve's former call-in radio program where he gave callers three free sins — six if they called on a cell phone. Some people laughed, some asked for more, but many got angry. They'd spit and sputter and tell him he wasn't a Christian. One lady said, "That's blasphemous and you're hurting the cause of Christ!" The show's producer had to calm her down, saying, "Lady, chill out. Steve can't give you free sins. It's a joke." But it gets people's attention, and for those who don't throw rocks or rotten tomatoes it gives Steve a chance to share the gospel, the good news that, because Jesus came, those who put their trust in him are counted as perfect in God's sight — and God's not angry at them any more. (Disclaimer: Steve Brown is my friend. He's my teacher, mentor, cheerleader and the one I call my "uncle-dad." So, anything I write about him is biased.) I don't remember when and where we met, but it was long after his once-brown hair turned white and most of it had fallen out. He's quite bald. In his new book he tells about doing the "bald guy's comb over" years ago. He describes how he tried to hide his baldness by lowering the part in his hair and growing one side of his hair longer so he could arrange the strands over the top of his head. That takes a lot of commitment and work to maintain, and guys who do that pray continually that the wind won't blow. One day an atheist friend called Steve out. "How can you be a preacher who is into honesty and stuff like that and be that dishonest with your hair? Frankly, it's not only dishonest, it looks silly," he said. "Don't you know that everybody knows it and that they laugh behind your back?" That night Steve went home and cut his hair and felt an incredible freedom. He didn't have to pretend any more. "Free at last! Thank God Almighty! Free at last," he writes. That's been Steve's core message for years — that those the Son of God has set free are free indeed. That's what his "three free sins" give away is all about. One of the things Steve has taught me, which he writes in his new book, is this: Your disobedience, your failure, your rebellion, your struggle to be better — in short, your sin — is the greatest gift God has given you if you know it. Not only that, but your obedience, your faithfulness, your success and your getting better is the most dangerous place you can be when you know it. Listen to me carefully: Steve is not saying that sinning is good and being good is bad, although he's often accused of that. He's saying that the best place to be is knowing that you are far worse than you ever thought you could be and that there's no other and no better place to run than to Jesus, and that his love and no-strings-attached acceptance of sinners (his grace) is infinitely bigger than anything you could ever hope for or imagine. The flip side is focusing on your obedience and purity and striving to get better. Steve says the reason Christians are so bad is that we're trying so hard to be good. Lots of Christians try hard. They study the principles, make checklists, do more, pray harder. The problem is their focus is on themselves and their progress, what they're doing or not doing, and not on what Jesus has already done. What has he done? He has taken away the penalty of sin — past, present and future. He has cleaned the slate, but has not left it empty. He has also given his followers a slate full of righteousness, a perfect record that cannot be erased. The irony is, if we know that we have not just "three free sins," but unlimited sins because they've all been covered, that's what motivates us to follow Christ and eventually become more like him. It's a byproduct of a love relationship, not something we reach by trying. Steve says once you know you don't have to do anything for Jesus, that's when you actually start wanting to do everything for him. Warehouse ministry

Nancy Kennedy
Columnist

GRACE NOTES

WHAT IT IS

The Warehouse Ministry is an outreach mission that helps with providing larger household goods (like appliances and furniture) - free of charge - to those in need right here in our local community.

WHO IT HELPS

Families and individuals can fall on hard times and need help to make tomorrow better than it was today. Tragedy from fire, loss of home, unexpected moves and appliances breaking, are all very real circumstances for far too many without the means to make a replacement.

YOU CAN HELP

Spread the word.

Tell someone you know that would be blessed from Warehouse Ministry assistance. Simply contact Journey Church to see if there is inventory available of the needed item.

Donate.

Have furniture or a working appliance you no longer need? It might be just taking up space in your home, garage or office, but it could bless someone else beyond measure. Contact us to schedule a pick-up.

Paris Stockyards reopens with Harrison County connection

By BEN HYATT, News Writer

Former Harrison County farmer Sammy Faulkner is co-managing the Paris Stockyards.

Feb. 9 marked the day of the first sale at Paris Stockyards since its closing in August 2011 under the ownership of United Producers.

Paris Stockyards was recently bought by the Loy Brothers, who run a farming operation in Russell Springs, Ky. Paris Stockyards is the fourth stockyard that the Loy Brothers own.

During the first sale at Paris Stockyards in over six months, 1,918 head of cattle were sold to buyers and shipped as far as Colorado to large commercial feedlots.

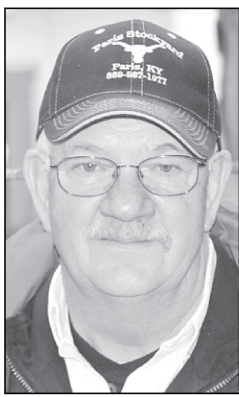

"There had been lots of enthusiasm since we have reopened," said Faulkner. "The farmers have been very supportive and very excited to see that we are back in business."

Faulkner, a 1970 graduate of Harrison County High School and lifelong cattle farmer, has been employed by the Loy Brothers to serve as co-manager of the stockyards and control the yard area as well as the selling ring.

Faulkner's counterpart is Craig Taylor, a graduate of the University of Kentucky with a degree in Animal Science. Taylor is responsible for the front office and registration.

"We are very pleased to have such a big run on our first sale," said Faulkner. "The quality of said Faulkner. "We also have modified the yards to make handling and selling more safe for everyone."

Along with outside changes, Faulkner said changes have also been made to the inside with cattle at our first sale is as good of cattle as I have ever seen."

Faulkner gave praise to the cosmetic repairs and recent updates the yard has received, pointing out how they have made the selling and buying experience top notch.

"We now have a double drive-thru for unloading live-stock to help with traffic congestion," new video monitors that display lot information for buyers inside the selling area.

"It is real top notch," said Faulkner. "As good of a place to buy as any."

Faulkner said all modifications made to the stockyards have been made with one goal in mind... to make everyone feel connected to the yard.

"We want everyone who is buying or selling to feel connected," said Faulkner. "Whether you are buying or selling two or 200 makes no difference. You get the same opportunities as everyone."

Faulkner added the reasoning behind the closeness in the sales is heavily due to the owners of the yards being farmers as well.

"The owners are farmers just like everyone else," said Faulkner. "They know what farmers are looking for in a stockyard and that is what they are trying to offer to the customers."

Faulkner said commission rates at Paris Stockyards is very reasonable and due to the shorter drive for some farmers, the yards will help ensure a bigger bang for their hard work.

"Our goal is to sell 50,000 head of cattle a year," said Faulkner. "We can beat that if we continue to provide a fair service to the farmers."

Paris Stockyard is located at 1198 Millersburg Rd., just past Bourbon County Drive-In.

Receiving time for livestock is all day Wednesday. Sales are on Thursday starting at 8:30 a.m. For more information contact the Paris Stockyards at 859-987-1977.

Above normal number of tornadoes, says Accuweather

State College, Pa. -- AccuWeather.com reports following a near-record number of tornadoes in 2011, an active severe weather season with above-normal tornadoes is expected in 2012.

There were 1,709 tornadoes in 2011, falling short of the record 1,817 tornadoes set in 2004. In comparison, the average number of tornadoes over the past decade is around 1,300.

Last year ranks as the fourth most deadly tornado year ever recorded in the United States.

In 2011, there was a very strong La Niña, a phenomenon where the sea surface temperatures in the central and eastern Pacific around the equator are below normal. As a result, there was a very strong jet stream, which is a key ingredient for severe weather.

Often in a La Niña year, the "Tornado Alley" shifts to the east, spanning the Gulf States, including Mississippi and Alabama, and the Ohio and Tennessee valleys. During the extremely active severe weather season of 2011, many tornadoes touched down east of the typical "Tornado Alley," which stretches from Texas to Kansas. Twisters frequently hit Texas to Kansas during the spring as warm, humid air from the Gulf of Mexico clashes with drier air coming out of the Rockies.

Warmer-than-normal Gulf of Mexico water is a key component to the active severe weather season anticipated in 2012. There will be a sufficient supply of warm and humid air to fuel supercell thunderstorms, the type of storms that spawn strong tornadoes, because of the warm Gulf water.

The weak to moderate La Niña during this winter is much weaker compared to last winter, and it is weakening even more now. There is evidence that warming is occurring in the equatorial Pacific, so the El Niño/La Niña Southern Oscillation (ENSO) is expected to turn neutral by April. In other words, the temperatures in the central and eastern equatorial Pacific will be near normal by spring.

"Areas that seemed to miss out on frequent severe weather last year may see an uptick this year," AccuWeather.com Expert Senior Meteorologist Dan Kottlowski said regarding the difference in pattern.

The mid-Mississippi and upper Ohio valleys are among the zones that may get hit more frequently by severe weather this year. Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan are included in this zone.

It is highly unlikely that the exact same areas of the Deep South that were struck by tragic tornado outbreaks in 2011 will be hit as hard again this year. However, there could be some damaging thunderstorms and tornadoes in the Gulf States this season.

The Deep South, including the Gulf States and eastern Texas, is expected to get hit by severe weather early in the season, mainly in March. By early April, the severe weather threat will retreat to the north, reaching the lower Ohio and mid-Mississippi valleys, according to Paul Pastelok, expert long-range meteorologist and leader of the AccuWeather.com Long-Range Forecasting Team.

"If I were in the South or Ohio Valley, I'd be extra prepared this year," Mike Smith, senior vice president of AccuWeather Enterprise Solutions cautioned.

Whether tornadoes hit highly populated areas like they did last year is harder to pinpoint.

"There is no way to know if it (2012) will be as active as last year. Last year we had two unfortunate occurrences simultaneously: a larger-than-normal number of tornadoes plus tornadoes hitting densely populated areas. There is no way to know if the cities are going to be hit in the same number as last year. If so, it could be another deadly year," Smith said.

Grant's Ark attraction held up by financial lag

By JAMIE BAKER-NANTZ,
LCNI News Service

When will the residents of Grant County see some dirt move on the Ark Encounter?

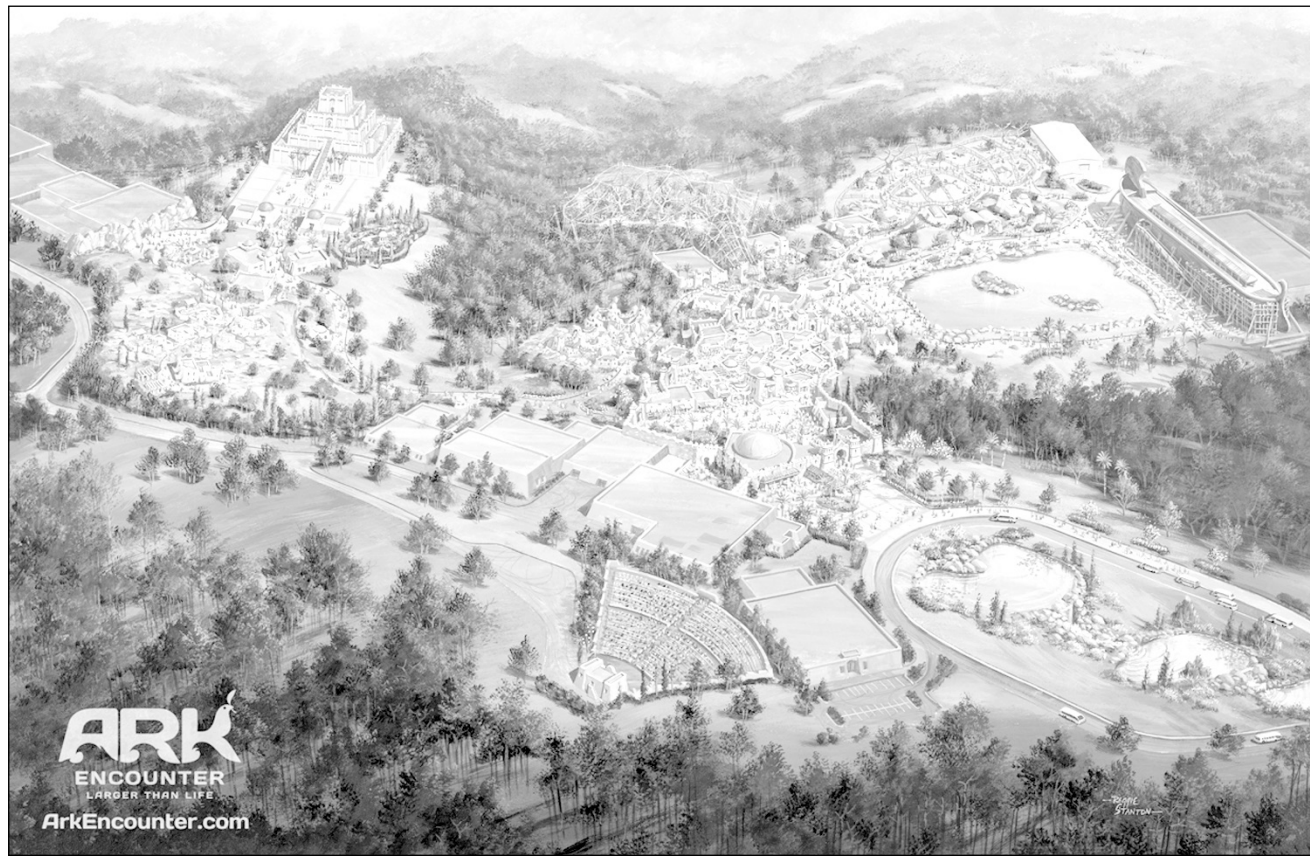

It could be awhile longer because financing for the project has not materialized as developers hoped it would.

No date has been set for a groundbreaking.

The Ark Encounter LLC did close on the final piece of property, known as the Finke property, needed for the project, which will encompass 800 acres. It will be located off KY 36 and I-75 in Williamstown.

The announcement that the Finke property, consisting of 550 acres, had been purchased was made on Feb. 15.

"Due to the rolling hills and ravines of this scenic property, about 800 acres are needed in order to get at least 160 useable acres – plus create a buffer around the Ark Encounter attraction. It has taken considerable, but necessary, time to close on all the different parcels, and there have been environmental studies that took time to perform on parts of the land, but all the needed acreage has been purchased," said

Mike Zovath, senior vice president of AiG and the Ark Encounter.

Developers of the project, which includes a full-scale replica of Noah's Ark, also said the project will be built in phases, rather than all at once.

The original completion date was set for 2014.

The main reason for the decision to construct the project in phases boiled down to money, or the lack thereof.

To date, Answers in Genesis, the ministry responsible for building the Creation Museum in Hebron, said $5 million has been raised for construction of the Ark project, which is less than they anticipated.

Zovath said the sluggish economy has impacted the project and when it will be completed.

Despite the delay in groundbreaking, local officials remain hopeful that it begins sooner rather than later.

Williamstown Mayor Rick Skinner said he had recent conversations about the project.

"The developers believe that closing on the Finke property will speed up the process and donations," Skinner said. Skinner said developers must have two-thirds of the funding in place in order to begin the project. That amounts to $48 million.

Answers in Genesis hoped to raise $24 million in donations to help fund the building of the 500-foot-long Ark, which will be the main attraction at the park. About $5 million has been raised so far, according to the Ark Encounter's press release issued last week.

Previously, the project cost was estimated to be $172.5 million.

In May 2011, the project was approved for state incentives from the Kentucky Tourism Development Finance Authority, based on a the projected investment of $172.5 million, which means the project would be eligible for a little more than $41 million in sales tax rebates.

Those state incentives are good for three years from the day the developers received approval.

Wade Gutman, chairman of the Grant County Industrial Development Authority, said the process wasn't unusual for a project of this size.

"I've talked with Gary Moore (Boone County's Judge-Executive) and he said they ran into the same thing when they were building the Creation Museum," Gutman said. "It is disappointing that it's not moving as quickly as projected, but it's still a good project."

How "fuel-efficient" is it?

"I've been commuting from Lexington to Paris everyday and only use about 6 kilowatts of electricity each way. I've used zero gas. This means it costs only about 47 cents per trip or about 20 bucks per month to drive. The display currently shows that the Volt is getting over 180 "miles per gallon". This car is a game-changer and everyone is invited to come test out this car for themselves. It's an experience."

Witch hazels already in bloom

Gardeners get anxious this time of the year. Warm one day, cold the next, the sun coaxes open a little patch of crocus by the path or we catch sight of an old landscape filled with waves of blooming white snow drops.

This year, the show is sure to come early and the forsythia are not the first to bloom, despite this oft cited sign of spring. There are other early bloomers to keep us occupied until spring truly arrives.

Right now I am looking out the window watching our Cornus mas literally pop open. I noticed the buds had begun to swell in the last week after the most recent cold snap and today's sun has warmed some buds enough to show the yellow petals that they had been protecting for months.

It is surprising we don't see more Cornus mas, or cornelian cherry, in our landscapes; it is the perfect small tree with all kinds of ornamental value.

Disease and insects free, the cornelian cherry has mottled, peeling bark and is the first tree to bloom in late winter or very early spring (and if the temperatures stay on the cool side the bloom time can last for weeks), and has lustrous foliage and red edible fruit in the summer.

Although the cornelian cherry is not really a cherry, rather in the dogwood family, the tart fruit can be used to make anything you would use cherries in. Fresh from the tree or made into syrup for ice cream is a good use...and if you go to international markets you will see the cornelian cherry in beverages and fruit spreads.

The genus Hamamelis, or witch hazel, has long been a favorite out here at the farm. Some species bloom in late fall and early winter; others pop open on warm February days. The bloom, best described as crimped, twisted and curled, by Chris Lane in his book Witch Hazels, has a whimsical quality. The blooms also offer up a spicy fragrance in the garden when not much else is going on. The different species have subtle differences but on the whole the genus is a large, vase-shaped shrub at maturity with excellent landscape value whether you are looking to naturalize or formalize the landscape.

I can't say enough good things about witch hazels. Sun or shade, average soil (certainly rich and well-drained is best), no pest problems, multi-seasonal interest and a selection that includes H. virginiana, the common American witch hazel that blooms in fall, H. japonica (Japanese witch hazel), H. mollis (Chinese witch hazel), H. vernalis (vernal witch hazel), and a group of hybrids represented by H. x intermedia.

This year most of these species have bloomed by now or just about now, always early bloomers no matter the winter.

Corylopsis glabrescens, or the fragrant winter-hazel, is from the same plant family as the witch hazel (Hamamelidaceae) and you can easily see the family resemblance in the foliage.

Most "hazels" have thick, sturdy leaves with a fluted quality to them... quite attractive, in fact.

The winterhazel has an open, sculptural quality to its habit, flat-topped but spreading.

It is a multi-stemmed shrub but can be trained into a single stem, small tree, with diligent pruning.

The plant does have multi-seasonal appeal but the best part about it happens in early spring. Before the leaves emerge the winterhazel is covered in pendulous pale-yellow blooms dangling from the wide reaching branches. It is nature at its finest.

The winterhazel is virtually pest-free, likes rich, well-drained soil, full sun to part shade and is best situated in a protected area because it blooms so early for us.

Unlike the crimped, curled and twisted blooms of its cousin, the witch hazel, a heavy April frost or freeze can damage the winterhazel's blooms.

PATSY PRATT ANDERSON

Anderson inducted into the Kentucky Transportation Hall of Fame

Patsy Pratt Anderson was recently inducted into the Kentucky Transportation Hall of Fame administered by the University of Kentucky Transportation Center. She is the first woman to receive this honor, which recognizes individuals who by their foresight, dedication, leadership, perseverance, and integrity have significantly enhanced transportation systems in the Commonwealth.

Anderson retired in 2011 from the Kentucky Transportation Center Technology Transfer Program. Her major contribution centered on promoting adult education programs, including the development of a Roads Scholar and Road Master Programs that gained national prominence. Ms. Anderson was instrumental in the development and implementation of a Safety Circuit Rider Program aimed at safety on low volume roads.

Anderson is a former resident of Robertson and Harrison counties and is a 1960 graduate of Harrison County High School.

Little did they know

Pendleton falls to Fillies in district opener, 56-49

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The headline should have said "Did they know Little?" referring to Harrison County senior Emalee Little. The 5-foot-4-inch small forward hit five three pointers en route to a game and career high 21 points in the Fillies 56-49 win.

The win avenged a regular season loss to the Lady Cats in which neither Little nor sophomore center Jordan Doram played.

The win put the Fillies into Thursday night's championship game facing Deming, who routed the Nicholas County Lady Bluejackets 60-44 in Tuesday night's semifinal. The Lady Devils are 8-19 for the year after Tuesday night's win.

The Fillies never trailed in Monday's contest as Little started the scoring with two of her five three pointers to give the Harrison County girls a 6-1 lead.

Pendleton County battled back but the Fillies continued to play well and pushed the lead to 17-8 at the end of the first period. Little scored 11 of her points in the opening stanza.

The Fillies stretched the lead to as much as 15 points during the second quarter before junior guard Ashton Wolfe hit three straight threes to cut the lead to 28-22 at the half.

Wolfe tallied 14 of her team high 19 points in the first half of the ballgame.

The Fillies pulled down six more rebounds in the first half than the Lady Cats and made three more field goals as the teams were identical from the foul line and the three-point line.

Pendleton County was unable or unwilling to adjust its defense going into the final half as the Lady Cats continued to allow Little open looks and she responded with seven more points in the third period.

Four other Fillies scored in the quarter to give Harrison County an edge of nine points heading into the final period.

Again the Lady Cats rallied as they turned the game into an alley game for a while with pushing, shoving and elbowing to gain the physical advantage.

They were successful for a time. With about four minutes left in the game, they cut the lead to two at 45-43. The rough play caught up with the Lady Cats though and the Fillies stepped to the charity stripe making 11 of 14 in the fourth quarter to ice

Cold shooting leads to the end of Thorobreds' season

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

"We played good enough defensively to win," commented Coach Mike Reitz following the 36-33 loss to Pendleton County Monday night. "The shots just would not fall."

Harrison County made only 27 percent from the field Monday in the opening round of the 38th District Tournament, which was made worse by the fact that they were one for 17 for six percent from the three-point line.

A few of the shots were forced, but the vast majority were attempts that, on most other occasions, went into the basket.

Not on this night.

Pendleton County didn't fare much better though they did score two more field goals on 10 fewer shots.

The Wildcats made two of six from the three-point line, which, while not great, is much better than six percent.

Free throws were nearly even with the Breds making 10 of 13 and the Wildcats eight of 13.

Harrison County never led in the game tying the score twice, once at the beginning of the second quarter and once with a little more than seven minutes left in the game.

Pendleton County's largest lead was eight points, but the game was generally a three-to-four point contest. Pendleton County led 9-7 at the end of the first quarter, 17-13 at the end of the half and 26-21 at the third quarter stop.

The Breds scored five unanswered points to tie the score in the fourth quarter, but Pendleton County answered with five straight of their own and the Breds could never catch up.

The game ended with three successive three-point attempts from Harrison County with each going astray.

Pendleton County held the rebounding edge 21-19, but also turned the ball over 14 times to nine for Harrison County. Senior Caleb Ford led the Thorobreds in scoring with 15 while Dillon Pulliam added 10.

Senior Jared Rering scored 13 to lead Pendleton County.

The Wildcats advance to play the winner of the Deming vs. Nicholas County game, which was to be played Tuesday night.

Harrison County ends its season with a 17-12 record while Pendleton County advances with a 17-13 mark.

Harrison County wrestlers unable to score at state meet

Seniors Anthony Shirley and Shawn Tobin were close but neither made it to the podium and the Harrison County wrestlers went scoreless in the state meet last weekend at the Kentucky Horse Park.

Both seniors won two matches and lost two, which left them one win shy of the eighth place finish required to score in the state. Tobin defeated the No. 1 seed for one of his wins and Shirley lost by one point to the eventual seventh place winner. Tobin also lost in overtime to a Boyle County grappler for one of his losses. Eric Kiskaden closed out his senior year with close losses in his two matches.

The freshmen competitors, Colton Mott and Terrell Roberts, along with eighth grader Nathan Lopez gained valuable experience against this top competition.

Coach Luke Tucker was disappointed for his seniors.

"I would have liked to have the seniors make it to the podium," he admitted. "I am really pleased though with how they fought to finish their careers."

Tucker concluded that he will be focused on developing the team over the off season.

"I am very excited to see how our young team develops over the off season."

MIKE'S MINUTE

College referees don't get paid enough

Before I go into my main topic of the week, I want to mention an award that my brother John received last Friday.

Only John's wife and daughters were aware of his being named to the North Hardin Basketball Hall of Fame last Friday for his contributions over several years to the program.

John has kept stats for the basketball Trojans for as long as I can remember and the school recognized him for that. He has traveled at his own expense, got to the state tournament every year with the coaching staff and made himself available for most anything needed.

Congratulations to my younger brother. I wish I could have been there for the ceremony, but when you don't know what's going on that is difficult.

Friday night I missed both the Fillies near victory and the Breds' big win at Montgomery County to fly to Dallas with Brent Hampton.

Brent is a big time college referee calling games in the Big East, Big Twelve and Conference USA.

The game I went to was the Saturday afternoon match between Marshall University and the Southern Methodist University Mustangs. But the game is only part of the story and really a small part.

The travel is brutal. Last week, Brent officiated a game at Valparaiso on Tuesday, University of Rhode Island in Kingston, R.I., on Wednesday and the game Saturday in Dallas. For a two o'clock game,

Mike Aldridge
Sports Writer

the officials nearly always have to be in the town the night before so that means he traveled home from near Chicago Tuesday after the game to fly out on Wednesday morning, returned Thursday to fly to Dallas on Friday at 1:20 in the afternoon.

This is grueling and many weeks there are four games not just three.

So we left Lexington on a direct flight to DFW (Dallas/Ft. Worth Airport) arriving around 4 p.m. our time in Dallas.

We then rented a car and battled rush hour traffic to the Marriott downtown to check in for the night.

It was about 6 p.m. our time, 5 p.m. in Dallas, when we checked in.

We stopped for a snack at a convenience store right outside the airport, which consisted of M&M's for Brent and some nuts and bark for me.

We met two of Brent's former football teammates at Eastern Kentucky who live in the Dallas area downstairs in the hotel and they took us to dinner at around 8 p.m.

We went to the Hotel ZaZa, which is a really nice place where the stars come when they visit Dallas.

We didn't see any stars or at least we didn't recognize them if they were stars.

We were back in the hotel by 10 and in bed soon after as Brent had a big day on Saturday. Excited yet?

Saturday morning we ate breakfast at 10 a.m. because a 2 p.m. game is hard to work into a regular eating schedule. So the breakfast is what we had until after the game and we got back to the airport.

We traveled down to the West End of Dallas and toured the Texas Book Depository where Lee Harvey Oswald "acting alone with no outside help" assassinated President Kennedy in 1963.

You might guess by the quotation marks that I do not believe the single gunman story and if you go and look at the spot, I doubt you would either.

Brent has been to Dallas many times, but had never taken the time to see the assassination site.

I had been there on two other occasions both before they made a museum out of the building when one could stand in the spot where Oswald is said to have stood and fired the fatal shots.

We spent a good hour there and then beat it quickly to the Moody Coliseum on the SMU campus for the game.

The officials have to be on site an hour and one half before the game and on the floor ready one half hour before the start.

On Saturday, Brent's partners were Hal Lusk from Jackson, Miss., and Mark Schnur of Charlotte, N.C., formerly of Evansville, Ind.

Schnur knew Patti's cousins who went to his alma mater Evansville Memorial and, of course, was a super guy.

I talked with the three of them for a few minutes, met the observer, Wes Johnson of Chattanooga originally, and then left them to have their pre-game.

I sat during the game with Johnson on press row; watched the game and listened to the coaches talk and to Johnson as he critiqued the officials.

The game was not too good in the first half as the Mustangs scored a grand total of 14 points but a good one in the second half when they rallied to only lose by 73-68 to the Thundering Herd.

The observer and I both thought the game was well officiated and since he agreed with me he must have done a good job.

We then drove to the airport, turned the rental car back in, and sat at a Friday's for a meal. I don't know if this was lunch or dinner, but it was just okay.

Food eaten at times that are not even close to regular times has to really be

Fillies drop overtime battle to Bryan Station Friday night

BY MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

In a game that was close throughout, the Harrison County Fillies lost an overtime thriller to Bryan Station of Lexington Friday in the season finale on the Hilltop.

The Lady Defenders, who were at one time highly rated this year, used man-to-man pressure and quickness to forge ahead early, but the Fillies handled the pressure well to stay in striking distance.

Bryan Station held the first quarter advantage at 15-8 but the Fillies chipped away at the margin and cut the lead to four at 27-23 by halftime.

The steady play continued for the Fillies in the third quarter as some three-point accuracy by senior Mariah Nichols and inside play by sophomore Jordan Doram helped the home squad to a six-point advantage in the period and a 36-34 lead going into the fourth stanza.

The lead seasawed back and forth for the entire period with pressure-packed shots being made by both teams.

The Fillies had the ball with four seconds left and the game tied, but after traveling the length of the floor a Nichols shot came off the board and the front rim putting the game into overtime.

Again the lead went back and forth until Lady Defenders' sophomore Victoria McCoy sank two free throws with only a few seconds left to give her team the 57-55 win.

McCoy was the leading scorer for Bryan Station with 18 followed by juniors Labianca Frazier with 13 and Deshante Clay with 10 points.

Harrison County was led by Doram with 24 points and Nichols who finished her home basketball career with 23.

Thorobreds win at Montgomery County

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, Sports Writer

The Harrison County Thorobreds were playing their best basketball of the season at just the right time as they won their fifth straight game Friday over the Montgomery County Indians.

In a thrilling game played on the Indians' floor in Mt. Sterling, the Thorobreds battled the favored home team in a game that saw six ties and 11 lead changes.

Harrison County led 9-2 at the start as they jumped out on the cold shooting Indians on the Montgomery County Senior Night.

The Indians made only one of their first 13 attempts from the field as the Breds rolled out to a 20-6 lead midway through the second quarter.

Montgomery County did find the range toward the end of the half to cut the lead to 22-13 at the end of the opening two quarters.

After an opening exchange of baskets in the third period, Montgomery County scored 16 straight points to take what was a 10-point deficit to a 31-25 lead half way through the third period. From this point until the game's end, the two teams exchanged the lead 10 times.

With less than a minute to play in the fourth period with the Breds trailing by three points, sophomore Dillon Pulliam buried a three pointer to tie the score at 52.

Senior guard Jake Handshoe of Montgomery County was fouled on a layup with 20 seconds left but made only one of his two free shots.

The Thorobreds pulled down the shot and junior guard Scott Kendall drove the left side of the floor past his defender to score the game winner with six seconds left in the game.

Kendall's left handed layup gave the Breds the 54-53 lead and a Omar Prewitt shot at the buzzer misfired giving Harrison County the third straight regular season win over the Indians.

For the game, Pulliam led all scorers with 20 points with senior Caleb Ford also in double figures with 16.

Prewitt led Montgomery County with 15. The Indians closed out the regular season with a 21-9 record.

special to make it a good experience.

After eating, we sat around the airport for a couple of more hours all the time wondering if they were going to cancel the flight on this rainy Saturday night.

They didn't and we bumped our way across the Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky skies back to Bluegrass Field at 11 p.m.

All of this to referee a college basketball game.

By the end of the year, Brent is exhausted and ready for some time off with his wife Heather and their three small boys.

The money is good, but it is hard to have a normal life traveling at the odd and late hours.

I had a great time, but it certainly gave me a different perspective on officiating.

The next time I watch a college game I will think about where the officials traveled from, what time they arrived, how much time before their flights leave and what time will they get home.

It's a tough job, but aren't we glad someone will do it?

Brent is the youngest son of Patsy and Doug Hampton and a graduate of Harrison County High School and Eastern Kentucky University.

Korona to play in Northeastern Kentucky Bowl Game in June

Harrison County quarterback Joe Korona will play for the West squad in the Northeastern Kentucky East-West Senior Bowl on June 15 at Morehead State University.

Korona, who battled thru an injury-plagued year last season, threw for 761 yards with four touchdowns completing 48 percent of his passes in his senior year at Harrison County High School. He also ran for 221 yards and two touchdowns.

Korona is being recruited by Centre, Hanover (Ind.), Capital in Columbus, Ohio, and Heidelberg of Tiffin, Ohio.

The West team will be coached by Josh Hughes of Lewis County. Nate McPeck of Fairview will coach the East squad.

Joe is the son of Tom and Elizabeth Korona and the grandson of Hall and Sally Kinney of Cynthiana, Robert Korona and Jeannine Foster of Florida.

Harrison County boys' track team finished second in Mason Indoor Meet

In what Coach Danny Simpson referred to as the biggest, most competitive meet of the year, the Harrison County Thorobreds squad finished second of 21 teams in Saturday's indoor competition at Mason County.

The 3200 meter relay team of Joe Thomas, Brandon Clarke, Tyler Martin and Joey Faulkner finished first in 9:22.09 and Campbell Hall grabbed the gold medal in the 400M race in :55.21 to lead the way for Harrison County. Junior Daniel Klapheke was second in the 55M hurdles while the 1600M relay consisting of Brandon Watkins, Martin, Hall and Clarke came in fourth to add to the Thorobreds score. Finishing in fifth place was Hall in the 55M dash, Martin in the 800M and Faulkner in the 1600M runs.

The Fillies were 12th of the 20 teams competing in the girls' competition. Haley Carr ran a new personal best :09.63 to win the 55M hurdles, which was the second fastest in school history. Natasha Ingram was sixth in the shot put with a throw of 30-feet-one-half-inch.

Coach Simpson said he was pleased by the performances.

"All of the athletes had improved performances," he noted. "We are looking forward to the Mason Dixon Games Indoor State Championships in a couple of weeks."

Thorobreds bowlers suffer first loss of the season, Fillies lose two more

There was no joy at Joyland last Sunday as the Harrison County bowlers battled the Scott County Cardinals in high school bowling action.

The Harrison County Thorobreds went down to defeat for the first time as Scott County edged them by a 42-pin pinfall total. Seniors James Snapp (453), Justin Edens (411) and Zach Schneider (408) led the way for Harrison County followed by Gregory Dick (396) and Joseph Bush (393).

The following evening the boys righted the ship by smoking Fleming County by the familiar 7-0 score to win the match. The four seniors were the leaders with Edens first with an outstanding 453 followed by a third place finish by Justin Mitchell (430) then Schneider (412) and Snapp (406). Bush's second place finish of 442 was all that kept the event from being an all senior night. The Thorobreds now have an outstanding 71-13 game record and an 11-1 match total.

The Fillies ran into some real difficulty as they dropped both the Scott County match and the Fleming County match by 0-7 scores.

The Joyland match saw Kelsi Caldwell's 298 score lead the Fillies followed by Rebecca Switzer's 287. Mikayla Fryman (269), Shelbi Morris (246) and Jessica Wilson (203) were the next top scorers.

Senior Night at Galactic Alley was not as good to the Fillies as it was the Thorobreds. The lone senior Fillie Ashley Boyd finished fifth with a 201 two-game total for her senior night. Switzer led the Fillies with 305 followed by Caldwell (303), Fryman (267) and Morris (221). The Fillies' record is now 50-34 in games and a 9-3 match record.

The Fillies Seniors, Emalee Little, Mariah Nichols and Kelsey Cummins, give a little smile as the clock winds down on the opening round of the District 38 Tournament opener Monday night. The Fillies were up by seven points on the Pendleton County Lady Wildcats as the clock ran out of time for a comeback. The three seniors, as well as their teammates, advanced and have a guarantee of at least two more games - the district finals and the Region 10 opener.

the game and send the Pendleton County team home for the second straight year.

The win improved the Fillies to 10-20 for the year while the Lady Cats end the season 13-17. Little's 21 points led all scorers followed by the 19 from Pendleton County's Wolfe. Doram had 12 points with 11 rebounds as she played her role this night to the coach's plan.

"We told Jordan that scoring would not be her biggest role tonight," said Coach Kim Furnish. "We needed her to stay out of foul trouble and play solid defense. She did that plus had a double double."

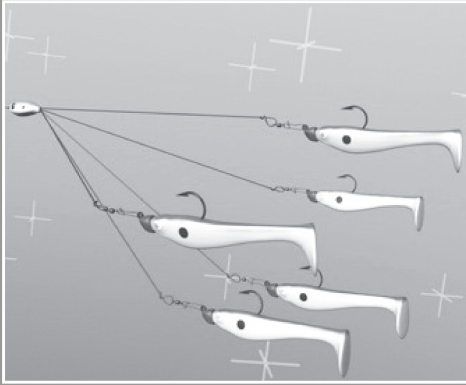

Senior Mariah Nichols added 12 points despite not having a great shooting performance. Senior Kristen Smith had 11 points and junior center Heather Jolley scored 10 with 14 rebounds to supplement Wolfe's scoring for Pendleton County.

Harrison County cheerleaders finished sixth Saturday in Bowling Green

Fresh from the UCA National Cheerleading contest in Orlando, Fla., where they finished fifth in the nation, the Harrison County cheerleaders finished sixth in the KAPOK competition Saturday in Bowling Green.

The Harrison County squad faced many of the same teams they defeated in Florida and came away one point from the fifth place slot.

Thanks to the hard work the girls put in at the Cynthiana Gymnastics Center, the tumbling segment of the performance was the highest rated among all competitors.

"We are fortunate to have such a fine facility to work and train in," said Coach Jessica Reynolds. "There were a lot of good things today about our routine and unfortunately some that didn't go our way."

The girls showed great enthusiasm and had great crowd support, according to Reynolds, which was very instrumental in the high finish. "Our stunting was not exactly on point, but a sixth place finish is very pleasing. We have had a great year with a lot of great memories."

Reynolds went on to compliment the leadership shown by the seniors on the squad.

"The seniors showed leadership for the younger girls during the competition," she concluded. "I have really enjoyed working with them and all of the girls and couldn't have asked for a better year."

PSC vice chairman to lead National Task Force on environmental policies

Gardner to represent state utility commissions' views on federal agencies

Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) Vice Chairman Jim Gardner has been named to lead a new task force of state public service commissioners that will serve as a liaison between state utility regulators and federal environmental rule makers.

The National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners (NARUC) has created the Task Force on Environmental Regulation and Generation in order to educate its members about the impacts of federal environmental rules on electric generation. The task force also will work with federal agencies, notably the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), to address the implementation of federal environmental rules.

David Wright, NARUC president, has named 10 state commissioners to serve on the task force. They are drawn from existing NARUC committees on electricity, natural gas, water, consumer issues and energy and the environment and represent Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, Ohio and Utah.

"I am honored to be appointed as chair of this task force," Gardner said. "State utility commissioners bring an important perspective to the discussion about these environmental rulemakings. I look forward to working with my colleagues and am thankful for this opportunity to serve."

The group will lead NARUC's efforts to educate its membership about Environmental Protection Agency rulemakings. The task force also will work with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) to plan future meetings of the FERC-NARUC Forum on Reliability and the Environment.

"This task force will be the key focal point for our members as we address the new environmental rulemakings," Wright said. "We must work together as a team to ensure that these rules do not inhibit reliability or overburden our consumers."

"We must get this right because the stakes are so high," he said. "We've got a strong balance of geographic and political diversity on this panel, and I am grateful for Commissioner Gardner's leadership. He is stepping up at a critical time."

Gardner noted that Kentucky is already beginning to see the impact of the latest round of EPA regulations related to the use of coal as a fuel for electric generation.

"These regulations are changing the way Kentucky's electric utilities produce power," he said. "Their impact on ratepayers will extend far into the future."

"The challenge for utility regulators is to find ways to manage and minimize those impacts,"

Gardner said. "It is my goal to make this NARUC task force instrumental in helping us meet that challenge."

NARUC is a non-profit organization. Its members include the governmental agencies that regulate telecommunications, energy, and water utilities in the fifty states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the US Virgin Islands. NARUC represents the interests of state public utility commissions before the three branches of the Federal government.

The PSC is an independent agency attached for administrative purposes to the Energy and Environment Cabinet.

PSC vice chairman to lead National Task Force on environmental policies

Gardner to represent state utility commissions' views on federal agencies

Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) Vice Chairman Jim Gardner has been named to lead a new task force of state public service commissioners that will serve as a liaison between state utility regulators and federal environmental rule makers.

The National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners (NARUC) has created the Task Force on Environmental Regulation and Generation in order to educate its members about the impacts of federal environmental rules on electric generation. The task force also will work with federal agencies, notably the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), to address the implementation of federal environmental rules.

David Wright, NARUC president, has named 10 state commissioners to serve on the task force. They are drawn from existing NARUC committees on electricity, natural gas, water, consumer issues and energy and the environment and represent Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, Ohio and Utah.

"I am honored to be appointed as chair of this task force," Gardner said. "State utility commissioners bring an important perspective to the discussion about these environmental rulemakings. I look forward to working with my colleagues and am thankful for this opportunity to serve."

The group will lead NARUC's efforts to educate its membership about Environmental Protection Agency rulemakings. The task force also will work with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) to plan future meetings of the FERC-NARUC Forum on Reliability and the Environment.

"This task force will be the key focal point for our members as we address the new environmental rulemakings," Wright said. "We must work together as a team to ensure that these rules do not inhibit reliability or overburden our consumers."

"We must get this right because the stakes are so high," he said. "We've got a strong balance of geographic and political diversity on this panel, and I am grateful for Commissioner Gardner's leadership. He is stepping up at a critical time."

Gardner noted that Kentucky is already beginning to see the impact of the latest round of EPA regulations related to the use of coal as a fuel for electric generation.

"These regulations are changing the way Kentucky's electric utilities produce power," he said. "Their impact on ratepayers will extend far into the future."

"The challenge for utility regulators is to find ways to manage and minimize those impacts," Gardner said. "It is my goal to make this NARUC task force instrumental in helping us meet that challenge."

NARUC is a non-profit organization. Its members include the governmental agencies that regulate telecommunications, energy, and water utilities in the fifty states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the US Virgin Islands. NARUC represents the interests of state public utility commissions before the three branches of the Federal government.

The PSC is an independent agency attached for administrative purposes to the Energy and Environment Cabinet.

March Fishing Madness: Good fishing spots for late winter, early spring

See RECORDS page —The winds still blow from the north and many days produce cold temperatures and leaden skies, but now is the time to catch big muskellunge in the tailwaters below Cave Run, Buckhorn and Green River lakes.

The smaller tailwaters give bank anglers and owners of small boats a chance at a trophy muskellunge.

"We had a report of a muskie caught from Cave Run Lake tailwater that was 52 inches long and weighed close to our current state record of 47 pounds," said Fred Howe, northeastern fishery district biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Sarah Terry caught the current state record, a 54-inch-long 47-pounder from Cave Run Lake in November 2008. The Cave Run Lake tailwater holds an excellent population of large muskellunge.

"My brother Wes crappie fishes below Cave Run Lake regularly," said Mike Hardin, assistant director of fisheries for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "He's had a couple of days this year where he's observed people catching several muskellunge around 45 inches long and saw one caught right at 50 inches. Those are nice muskies."

Anglers must catch a muskellunge of at least 40 inches in length to qualify for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's Trophy Fish/Master Angler program.

Live small bluegill and suckers draw the most interest from muskellunge in the Cave Run tailwaters. "They hit the Suick jerkbaits and a large soft plastic lure called a Bulldog up there," said Hardin, who has fished Cave Run Lake and the Licking River since childhood. "But, live bait produces best."

Hardin said anglers should concentrate on the mouths of tributaries in the Licking River just below Cave Run Lake when the water flowing through the dam is a little high.

"The best water level for them is between 900 and 2,000 cubic feet per second going through Cave Run Lake dam," Hardin explained. "This level pushes them into those tributaries seeking that warm water at this time of year. They are no doubt going through their pre-spawn behavior and they congregate in those tributaries."

To find out the flow through Cave Run Lake dam, go to the Louisville District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers webpage at www.lrl.usace.army.mil, click on the Lake and River Reports tab and then on "Cave Run."

A public boat ramp accommodates boaters just below Cave Run Dam with ample bank access. A canoe, johnboat or fishing kayak would be ideal for fishing this section of the Licking River.

Another great muskellunge spot to try right now is the tailwaters of Buckhorn Lake, a 1,230-acre lake 28 miles west of Hazard formed by damming the Middle Fork of Kentucky River. The tailwater of the Buckhorn Lake holds an excellent population of 30- to 40-inch muskies. February and March are two of the most productive months to fish for them.

There's no boat ramp below the dam, but there's room to launch a fishing kayak, float boat or small johnboat with a take-out a few miles downstream at the KY 28 bridge.

The Middle Fork of Kentucky River just below Buckhorn Dam also provides limited bank fishing opportunity to chase muskies.

In the early spring, if the water is clear and levels aren't too high, some anglers launch bass boats in Beattyville and motor up the Middle Fork of the Kentucky River to fish in the lower tailwaters

Be careful while navigating this section of the Middle Fork of the Kentucky River because it is full of deadfalls that can damage the lower unit of a boat motor. Muskies congregate around flooded wood cover and are caught by casting jerkbaits to this structure.

Muskie guide Chris Haley fishes white, chartreuse or silver-colored lures in the spring, which mimic the colors of shad. Later in the year, he switches to larger yellow and orange-colored lures when muskies fatten up on carp and suckers.

The extreme drawdown of the lake to winter pool (25 feet) and the rapid, unpredictable rise to summer pool in the spring, have a big effect on fishing. The lake is often muddy and unfishable in the early spring. This makes the tailwater a much more attractive alternative for muskie fishing at this time of year.

Heavy discharges from the lake in the fall keep the tailwaters stocked with muskellunge as well.

Another productive spot to try for muskellunge is the Green River tailwater just below Green River Lake, near Campbellsville off KY 55. The Tailwater

Recreation Area gives anglers ample bank fishing opportunity and a boat ramp accommodates small boats, canoes and fishing kayaks.

Anglers using a motorboat on the Green River Lake tailwater should be extremely careful as this section of the Green River contains riffles and shallow shoals. A canoe or fishing kayak would make a much better choice. For more information on floating the Green River Lake tailwater log on to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's webpage at fwky.gov, click on the "Fishing and Boating" tab, then the "Blue Water Trails" tab.

Shad-colored jerkbaits draw strikes from Green River muskellunge in the deep holes that have woody structure in them. Live small bluegills or shad worked in the same areas also work well. The area immediately below Green River Lake is relatively small and would be an excellent spot to live bait fish for muskellunge from the bank.

"Whether you use live or artificial baits, if you plan to release your muskellunge, handle them as little as possible and release them back into the water as quickly as you can," said Gerry Buynak, assistant director of fisheries for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife.

Remember the current license year expires Feb. 29. If you plan to fish after March 1, you'll need to buy a new fishing license, available in the sporting goods section of department stores and tackle shops. You may buy one by visiting the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife homepage at fwky.gov or by calling 1-877-598-2401.

BBB names top ten scams of 2011

The Better Business Bureau investigates thousands of scams every year.

A new scam source (www.bbb.org/scam) is a comprehensive resource on scam investigations from BBBs around the country, with tips from BBB, law enforcement and others.

The public can sign up to receive scam alerts by email, or can be a scam detective by reporting scams in your area.

The top scams reported during 2011 were:

Top Job Scam

BBB sees lots of secret shopper schemes, work-from-home scams, and other phony job offers, but the worst job-related scam can dash your hopes and steal your identity. Emails, websites and online applications all look very professional, and the candidate is even interviewed for the job (usually over the phone) and then receives an offer. In order to start the job, however, the candidate has to fill out a "credit report" or provide bank information for direct deposit of their "paychecks." The online forms are nothing more than a way to capture sensitive personal data - and, of course, there is no job, either.

Top Sweepstakes and Lottery Scam

You've won a whole lot of money, and in order to claim it you have to send us a smaller amount of money. Keep it confidential! This year's top sweepstakes scam was undoubtedly the email claiming to be from Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg announcing that the recipient was the winner of $1 million from the popular social networking site. These kinds of scams often use celebrities or other famous names to make their offer seem more genuine. If you aren't sure, don't click on the link. Go directly to the homepage of the company mentioned. If they are really giving away $1 million, there will be some kind of announcement on their website.

Top Social Media/Online Dating Scam

On the Internet, it's easy to pretend to be someone you are not. Are you really friends with all of your "Friends" on Facebook? Do you have a lot of personal information on a dating site? With so much information about us online, a scammer can sound like they know you. There are tons of ways to use social media for scams, but one this year really stands out because it appeals to our natural curiosity...and it sounds like it's coming from a friend. Viral videos claiming to show everything from grisly footage of Osama bin Laden's death to the latest celebrity hijinks have shown up on social media sites, often looking as if they have been shared by a friend. When you click on the link, you are prompted to "upgrade your Flash player," but the file you end up downloading contains a worm that logs into your social media account, sends similar messages to your friends, and searches for your personal data.

Top Home Improvement Scam

Always near the top of BBB complaint data are home improvement contractors who often leave your home worse than they found it. They usually knock on your door with a story or a deal - the roofer who can spot some missing shingles on your roof, the paver with some leftover asphalt who can give you a great deal on driveway resealing. The worst are those who move in after a natural disaster, taking advantage of desperate homeowners who need immediate help and may not be as suspicious as they would be under normal circumstances. Find a contractor you can trust at www.bbb.org.

Top Check Cashing Scam

Two legitimate companies - Craig's List and Western Union - are used for an inordinate amount of scamming these days, and especially check cashing scams. Here's how it works: Someone contacts you via a Craig's List posting, maybe for a legitimate reason like buying your old couch or perhaps through a scam like hiring you as a secret shopper. Either way, they send you a check for more than the amount they owe you, and they ask you to deposit it into your bank account and then wire the difference via Western Union.

When the original check bounces, you are out whatever money you wired... and you're still stuck with the old couch.

Top Phishing Scam

"Phishing" is when you receive a suspicious phone call asking for personal information or an email that puts a virus on your computer to hunt for your data. It's almost impossible to avoid them if you have a telephone or an email account. But the most pernicious phishing scam this year disguised itself as official communication from NACHA - the National Automated Clearing House Association - which facilitates the secure transfer of billions of electronic transactions every year. The email claims one of your transactions did not go through, and it hopes you react quickly and click on the link before thinking it through. It may take you to a fake banking site "verify" your account information, or it may download malware to infiltrate your computer.

Top Identity Theft Scam

There are a million ways to steal someone's identity. This one has gotten so prevalent that many hotels are posting warnings in their lobby. Here's how it works: You get a call in your hotel room in the middle of the night. It's the front desk clerk, very apologetic, saying their computer has crashed and they need to get your credit card number again, or they must have gotten the number wrong because the transaction won't go through, and could you please read the number back so they can fix the problem? Scammers are counting on you being too sleepy to catch on that the call isn't from the hotel at all, but from someone outside who knows the direct-dial numbers for the guest rooms.

Top Financial Scam

In challenging economic times, many people are looking for help getting out of debt or hanging on to their home, and almost as many scammers appear to take advantage of desperate situations. Because the federal government announced or expanded several mortgage relief programs this year, all kinds of sound-alike websites have popped up to try to fool consumers into parting with their money. Some sound like a government agency, or even part of BBB or other nonprofit consumer organizations. Most ask for an upfront fee to help you deal with your mortgage company or the government (services you could easily do yourself for free), and almost all leave you in more debt.

Top Sales Scam

The Internet has introduced a whole new way to rip people off. Penny auctions are very popular because it seems like you can get something useful - cameras, computers, etc. - for way below retail. But you pay a small fee for each bid (usually 50 cents to $1.00) and if you aren't the winner, you lose that money. Winners often are not even the top bidder, just the last bidder when time runs out. Although not all penny auction sites are scams, some are being investigated as online gambling. BBB recommends you treat them the same way you would legal gambling in a casino - know exactly how the bidding works, set a limit for yourself, and be prepared to walk away before you go over that limit.

Scam of the Year

The BBB phishing scam! Hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of people have gotten emails that very much look like an official notice from BBB. The subject line says something like "Complaint Against Your Business," and the instructions tell the recipient to click on a link or open an attachment to get the details. If the recipient does either, a virus is launched on their computer...a virus that can steal banking information, passwords and other critical pieces of information. BBB is working with security consultants and federal law enforcement to track down the source of these emails, and has already shut down dozens of hijacked websites. Anyone who has opened an attachment or clicked on a link should run a complete system scan using reputable anti-virus software. If your computer is networked with others, all machines on the network should be scanned, as well.

LEGAL NOTICE MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Pursuant to a Judgment and Order of Sale entered by the Harrison Circuit Court on January 13, 2012 in Civil Action No. 11-CI-00056 styled PNC Bank, National Association, Plaintiff, vs. Eugene H. Turner, Unknown Spouse of Eugene H. Turner, Unknown Occupants, Commonwealth of Kentucky, County of Harrison and City of Cynthiana, Kentucky, Defendants, the Master Commissioner of the Harrison Circuit Court will sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder at the front door of the Harrison County Courthouse, in Cynthiana, Kentucky, on Friday, March 2, 2012 at 10:00 a.m., the following described property:

Being all of Lot No. 7, Block G, Unit 1D of the White Oak Estates Subdivision as shown on plat of record in Plat Cabinet 5, Sheet 155 and subject to the restrictions of record in Deed Book 237, Page 283.

Being the same property conveyed to Eugene H. Turner and Evelyn H. Turner, husband and wife, by deed from Anthony Shouse and Shellie D. Shouse, husband and wife, dated July 23, 2004, of record in Deed Book 277, Page 147, in the Harrison county Clerk's Office.

The property is being sold to produce a sum sufficient to satisfy the judgments and liens as follows: (a) The costs of this action, including the Master Commissioner's fee, appraiser's fee and advertising costs; (b) Judgment for the Plaintiff in the amount of $110,511.73 plus interest at the rate of 7.125% per annum from November 15, 2011 until paid; (c) Real Estate taxes, plus interest and penalties, if any, for taxes assessed for the year 2011 and previous years. (d) Plaintiff's Court costs and attorney fees.

The property shall be sold upon the following terms and conditions: (1) The property shall be sold free and clear of all liens and claims of the parties to this action; (2) The purchaser shall be required to pay the sum of 10% of the purchase price in cash, certified funds or by other immediately verifiable collectable medium of exchange acceptable to the Commissioner, on the day of sale to apply on the purchase price; (3) The balance of the purchase price shall be due and payable within sixty (60) days after the day of sale; (4) The purchaser shall be required to execute a bond with good and sufficient surety thereon as approved by the Commissioner to secure the unpaid portion of the purchase price, the bond to bear interest at the rate of 12% per annum from the day of sale until paid, the bond to have the same force and effect as a judgment and shall remain a lien on the property as additional security until the purchase price is paid in full; (5) In the event that the Plaintiff is the successful purchaser, it shall be entitled to a credit on its judgment against the purchase price and shall only be obligated to pay court costs, the fees and costs of the Master Commissioner, and any real estate taxes payable pursuant to this order, and in that event, no bond shall be required; (6) The purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all or any part of the purchase price or paying the bond before maturity by paying the balance of the principal together with all accrued interest thereon until the date of payment; (7) The purchaser shall obtain possession of the property upon confirmation of the sale by the Court and payment of the purchase price in full; (8) All ad valorem taxes on the property for calendar year 2012 and all subsequent years shall be assumed and paid by the purchaser. All real property taxes due and owing to Harrison County or the City of Cynthiana for 2011 and prior years will be paid from the proceeds of sale. If any tax bills have been sold to third parties under a Certificate of Delinquency under KRS Chapter 134, the purchaser of the property will receive a credit against the purchase price for an amount equal to the sum paid to the County Clerk by the third party for the tax bill with the purchaser then being responsible for redemption of the Certificate of Delinquency including any additional interest, costs, fees or charges allowed by law; (9) The property shall be sold subject to any assessment for public improvements levied against the property and subject to all rules and regulations enforced by the Cynthiana-Harrison County-Berry Joint Planning and Zoning Commission, all applicable health and safety regulations, all restrictions and easements thereon appearing of record in the Harrison County Court Clerk's Office, governmental laws and regulations affecting the property, and shall be subject to any unrecorded easements, discrepancies or conflicts in boundary lines, shortage in area and encroachments, if any there be, which an accurate and complete survey or an inspection of the property would disclose; (10) The purchaser shall bear the risk of loss on the improvements on the property and the risk of loss shall pass to the purchaser as of the day and time of sale; (11) The property shall be sold with any improvements thereon "as is"; and (12) The property shall be sold subject to such right of redemption as may exist in favor of the United States of America pursuant to 28 USC Section 2410, and the right of redemption of the Defendants.

All bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

LEGAL NOTICE MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Pursuant to a Judgment and Order of Sale entered by the Harrison Circuit Court on January 17, 2012 in Civil Action No. 11-CI-00179 styled Vanderbilt Mortgage and Finance, Inc., Plaintiff, vs. Billy W. Hearn, Unknown Spouse of Billy W. Hearn, Kendra S. Collins, Unknown Spouse of Kendra S. Collins, Harrison County, Kentucky and DGS Development, Ltd., Defendants, the Master Commissioner of the Harrison Circuit Court will sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder at the front door of the Harrison County Courthouse, in Cynthiana, Kentucky, on Friday, March 2, 2012 at 10:00 a.m., the following described property:

Lot 2 of that subdivision fronting both on Eals Lane and Ruddles Mill Pike (1940), Harrison County, Kentucky, a final subdivision plat accurately depicting said lots prepared from a survey conducted by Allen Patrick Darnell, P.E. (20700), PLS (#3553) on the 28th day of July, 2005, with the plat plotted on the 9th day of November, 2005; said plat being recorded in Plat Cabinet 6, Sheet 42 and for a more particular description of each lot, see said plat.

Being the same property conveyed to Billy W. Hearn and Kendra S. Collins, unmarried, by deed dated June 12, 2008, of recording Deed Book 304, Page 338 in the Office of the Harrison County Clerk.

Also a 2007 Clayton Mobile Home, Serial No. CH0002981KYAB.

The property is being sold to produce a sum sufficient to satisfy the judgments and liens as follows: (a) The costs of this action, including the Master Commissioner's fee, appraiser's fee and advertising costs; (b) Judgment for the Plaintiff in the amount of $122,922.48 with interest thereon at the rate of 8.28% per annum from May 26, 2011 until paid; (c) Real Estate taxes, plus interest and penalties, if any, for taxes assessed for the year 2010 and previous years. (d) Plaintiff's Court costs and attorney fees.

The property shall be sold upon the following terms and conditions: (1) The property shall be sold free and clear of all liens and claims of the parties to this action; (2) The purchaser shall be required to pay the sum of 10% of the purchase price in cash, certified funds or by other immediately verifiable collectable medium of exchange acceptable to the Commissioner, on the day of sale to apply on the purchase price; (3) The balance of the purchase price shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days after the day of sale; (4) The purchaser shall be required to execute a bond with good and sufficient surety thereon as approved by the Commissioner to secure the unpaid portion of the purchase price, the bond to bear interest at the rate of 12% per annum from the day of sale until paid, the bond to have the same force and effect as a judgment and shall remain a lien on the property as additional security until the purchase price is paid in full; (5) In the event that the Plaintiff is the successful purchaser, it shall be entitled to a credit on its judgment against the purchase price and shall only be obligated to pay court costs, the fees and costs of the Master Commissioner, and any real estate taxes payable pursuant to this order, and in that event, no bond shall be required; (6) The purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all or any part of the purchase price or paying the bond before maturity by paying the balance of the principal together with all accrued interest thereon until the date of payment; (7) The purchaser shall obtain possession of the property upon confirmation of the sale by the Court and payment of the purchase price in full; (8) All ad valorem taxes on the property for calendar year 2011 and all subsequent years shall be assumed and paid by the purchaser. All real property taxes due and owing to Harrison County or the City of Cynthiana for 2010 and prior years will be paid from the proceeds of sale. If any tax bills have been sold to third parties under a Certificate of Delinquency under KRS Chapter 134, the purchaser of the property will receive a credit against the purchase price for an amount equal to the sum paid to the County Clerk by the third party for the tax bill with the purchaser then being responsible for redemption of the Certificate of Delinquency including any additional interest, costs, fees or charges allowed by law; (9) The property shall be sold subject to any assessment for public improvements levied against the property and subject to all rules and regulations enforced by the Cynthiana-Harrison County-Berry Joint Planning and Zoning Commission, all applicable health and safety regulations, all restrictions and easements thereon appearing of record in the Harrison County Court Clerk's Office, governmental laws and regulations affecting the property, and shall be subject to any unrecorded easements, discrepancies or conflicts in boundary lines, shortage in area and encroachments, if any there be, which an accurate and complete survey or an inspection of the property would disclose; (10) The purchaser shall bear the risk of loss on the improvements on the property and the risk of loss shall pass to the purchaser as of the day and time of sale; (11) The property shall be sold with any improvements thereon "as is"; and (12) The property shall be sold subject to such right of redemption as may exist in favor of the United States of America pursuant to 28 USC Section 2410, and the right of redemption of the Defendants.

All bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Hudnall, L.S. on March 31, 1995 and which said plat is recorded in Plat Cabinet 3, Sheet 86A. Said property has an address of 148 Nunnelley Lane (formerly Rt. 6 Box 37).

Said property was conveyed to Douglas Kilby and Angie J. Kilby (fka Angie J. Burgett), husband and wife, on April 19, 2009, by a deed recorded on August 15, 2007, in Deed Book 299, Page 175, in the Office of the Harrison County Clerk's Office.

The property is being sold to produce a sum sufficient to satisfy the judgments and liens as follows: (a) The costs of this action, including the Master Commissioner's fee, appraiser's fee and advertising costs; (b) Judgment for the Plaintiff in the amount of $200,209.77 and interest in the amount of $10,463.01 through September 12, 2011 with interest thereafter at the rate of $41.14 per diem until paid; (c) Real Estate taxes, plus interest and penalties, if any, for taxes assessed for the year 2011 and previous years. (d) Plaintiff's Court costs and attorney fees.

The property shall be sold upon the following terms and conditions: (1) The property shall be sold free and clear of all liens and claims of the parties to this action; (2) The purchaser shall be required to pay the sum of 10% of the purchase price in cash, certified funds or by other immediately verifiable collectable medium of exchange acceptable to the Commissioner, on the day of sale to apply on the purchase price; (3) The balance of the purchase price shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days after the day of sale; (4) The purchaser shall be required to execute a bond with good and sufficient surety thereon as approved by the Commissioner to secure the unpaid portion of the purchase price, the bond to bear interest at the rate of 12% per annum from the day of sale until paid, the bond to have the same force and effect as a judgment and shall remain a lien on the property as additional security until the purchase price is paid in full; (5) In the event that the Plaintiff is the successful purchaser, it shall be entitled to a credit on its judgment against the purchase price and shall only be obligated to pay court costs, the fees and costs of the Master Commissioner, and any real estate taxes payable pursuant to this order, and in that event, no bond shall be required; (6) The purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all or any part of the purchase price or paying the bond before maturity by paying the balance of the principal together with all accrued interest thereon until the date of payment; (7) The purchaser shall obtain possession of the property upon confirmation of the sale by the Court and payment of the purchase price in full; (8) All ad valorem taxes on the property for calendar year 2012 and all subsequent years shall be assumed and paid by the purchaser. All real property taxes due and owing to Harrison County or the City of Cynthiana for 2011 and prior years will be paid from the proceeds of sale. If any tax bills have been sold to third parties under a Certificate of Delinquency under KRS Chapter 134, the purchaser of the property will receive a credit against the purchase price for an amount equal to the sum paid to the County Clerk by the third party for the tax bill with the purchaser then being responsible for redemption of the Certificate of Delinquency including any additional interest, costs, fees or charges allowed by law; (9) The property shall be sold subject to any assessment for public improvements levied against the property and subject to all rules and regulations enforced by the Cynthiana-Harrison County-Berry Joint Planning and Zoning Commission, all applicable health and safety regulations, all restrictions and easements thereon appearing of record in the Harrison County Court Clerk's Office, governmental laws and regulations affecting the property, and shall be subject to any unrecorded easements, discrepancies or conflicts in boundary lines, shortage in area and encroachments, if any there be, which an accurate and complete survey or an inspection of the property would disclose; (10) The purchaser shall bear the risk of loss on the improvements on the property and the risk of loss shall pass to the purchaser as of the day and time of sale; (11) The property shall be sold with any improvements thereon "as is"; and (12) The property shall be sold subject to such right of redemption as may exist in favor of the United States of America pursuant to 28 USC Section 2410, and the right of redemption of the Defendants.

All bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.
